Making wind vees for our Science unit on Weather.

Dear Parents,

In light of Remembrance Day last Tuesday, I begin by acknowledging the men and women who have served our country through the armed forces both in the past and present. Their courage and commitment allow us the freedom we enjoy today in this great nation. May we always remember those who paid the ultimate sacrifice during times of conflict. Lest we forget.

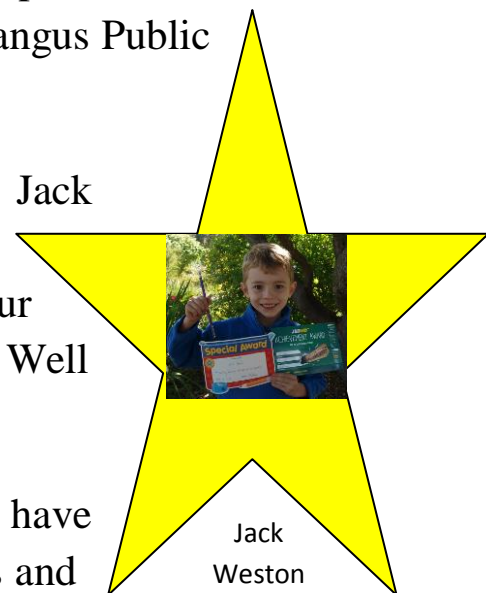

Last Tuesday we set off for Gundagai South Public School for the day. We were entertained by the author of the Nanny Piggins series, R.A Spratt who read a number of chapters with great expression and excitement. The students learnt about the importance of using your imagination to create entertaining stories and using life experiences to trigger writing ideas. In the afternoon our Year 5 and 6 students lead tabloid sports and athletics events for our K-4 students. Once again it was great to see the great leadership qualities in our students and the way they represent our community with pride. Thank you to Pip McAlister for organising the day and to Brungle Public School and Nangus Public School for their great sportsmanship.

Our student of the week this week is Jack Weston. Jack receives his award for dedication towards the upkeep of our prize winning chooks. Jack always ensures that our girls are put away at night and are well fed and watered. Well done Jack!

In Science we have been looking at the weather. We have designed our own wind veins using recyclable materials and a compass to find true north.

Our super spellers this week are Congratulations to all our award winners!

I see a man saving a deer from the flood.
I think the man will drown.
I wonder if the deer will survive ✓

I see a vte with people
on it.
I think it would be hard for the vte in the flood.
I wonder if the water would rise over the vte. - ✓

Incredible work George!
